

JOHN D. TOOK $2 WITNESS FEE, SO DID JOHN D. JR.

John Mitchell, Untermyer and Guggenheim Declined Industrial Board's Checks.

CLEVELAND TESTIFIES.

Denies Rockefeller Influence

Forced Resignation of Dr. Allen.

Of all the men, rich and poor, who have testified before the commission on industrial relations here only three—John Mitchell, Samuel Untermyer and Daniel Guggenheim—have refused to accept witness fees of $2 a day for their appearance.

"I never accept pay for appearing at public hearings," Mr. Untermyer said.

"I'll sign the receipt, but I don't want the money," said Mr. Guggenheim.

Mr. Mitchell said: "Not a cent!"

But not only did John D. Rockefeller accept a stipend of $2, but he also took mileage of $3 for a trip from Tarrytown, though it was understood at the hearing yesterday that Mr. Rockefeller's unexpected appearance was due to the fact that he was already in the city and wished to avoid an additional trip to-day.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. took $2 for three days, and his aide, Ivy L. Lee, rejected a check for $4 and received $2 because he had been kept waiting four days.

Amos Pinchot, R. Fulton Cutting, Jacob H. Schiff, J. P. Morgan and all the rest took what was coming to them.

John Mitchell even refused mileage amounting to about $18.

The session to-day was the last the Commission will hold in this city until May.

The squabble between Dr. William H. Allen and the Bureau of Municipal Research which led to Dr. Allen's resignation from the bureau, came before the Commission for which Allen is now an investigator.

Dr. F. A. Cleveland, director of the Bureau, defended the bureau from the charge of being influenced by the Rockefeller money.

He said Dr. Allen resigned because his policy of publicity did not agree with that of his colleagues.

Once, said Dr. Cleveland, Dr. Allen acted as official, despite the objections of the other directors, the following were:

Allen's resignation was a result of his belief in the worth while of the work of the bureau.

He said that he was a member of the board of directors of the bureau.

World's Two Richest Men Before Federal Commission; One Smiling and Happy, the Other Gloomy and Morose

The little old man of the white whiskers and the infectious laugh has given away nearly $250,000,000 and has told the public about every cent of it. Mr. Rockefeller's gift has been $75,000,000 less, and of nearly $250,000,000 of this amount the public never knew until his son revealed it in a casual way two weeks ago.

In the one man the gathering of an enormous fortune and the giving away of a great part of it has acted like a happy stimulant. To the other, to all appearances, it has brought only a dreary burden of worried responsibility.

Striking Contrast Between World's Greatest Money-makers as They Appear Together—Carnegie, the Joker, Proud Because His Workmen Call Him "Andy"—Rockefeller, the Rigid, Austere and Burdened by Responsibilities.

Andrew Carnegie, who had just told an audience of five hundred Americans that he liked to be called "Andy" behind his back, stepped down from the stage of the great assembly room of the Metropolitan Building. He waved aside the outstretched arms of one or two volunteers who were afraid that he might stumble on the short stairway. Mr. Carnegie is eighty years old.

As he was putting on his coat a door behind him opened to let in John D. Rockefeller Jr., seventy-six years old, who, with Mr. Carnegie, has been the most conspicuous giver away of money of this great money-gathering and money-spending period of all time. Thus, before an audience of less than a thousand gathered to hear the testimony taken by the Commission on Industrial Relations of the United States, were these two rich old men brought in contrast.

The picture was made more vivid to the spectators because the appearance of Mr. Rockefeller was entirely unexpected, except by the chairman and members of the commission. There had been no hint given, even to the reporters, that he was coming. If he was aware of the gasping and bustle which spread across the audience like a ripple as he appeared from that back stairway, he did not show it. He painstakingly followed the guidance of the attendant and secretary who were at his elbow, and seemed almost to wait for them to push him forward.

OIL KING STUDIES HIS CURIOUS AUDIENCE.

Of heavy frame, with a ruddiness of skin which sometimes gives a false appearance of heartiness to the advanced age, Mr. Rockefeller straightened himself up and looked slowly around the audience. He obeyed the touch of his attendant and seated himself as he looked. He was dressed in a heavy, pepper and salt, long-tailed sack suit, which did not fit him snugly. It was hunched up over his shoulders and he sat sideways on it so that it bulged out under his arm.

Mr. Rockefeller's eyes looked tired. He looked at Chairman Frank Walsh as though he were about to submit to a disagreeable ordeal, entirely unnecessary, with as good a grace as possible. His hands rested heavily on the table before him. They are big hands, with the appearance of having been used in manual labor.

In listening to the questions which Chairman Walsh put to him, Mr.

DYNAMITE BOMBS FOUND IN A TRUNK ON A FRENCH LINER

Warning by Wireless Frustrates a Plot to Blow Up the Champagne.

PARIS, Feb. 6 (Associated Press).—A plot to blow up the French Line steamer La Champagne, which has arrived at Corunna, Spain, from Mexico, was frustrated by a wireless message received aboard the ship on Jan. 19, according to the Journal's Madrid correspondent.

Reports made by officers of the vessel are said to have stated that the information given in the wireless message was that a man aboard, believed to be a German, intended to destroy the ship.

Prompt measures were taken by the captain and the man was arrested. Five dynamite bombs, the correspondent says, were found in his trunk.

GERMANS RENEW GREAT STRUGGLE ON WARSAW FRONT

Undismayed by the Success of the Russians in Crossing the Bzura River.

LONDON, Feb. 6 (Associated Press).—On his chosen ground to the west of Warsaw Gen. von Hindenburg, the German commander, is continuing his costly efforts to break through to the Polish capital. At the same time the Russians, further to the north, have pressed forward, and after crossing the Bzura River they are seriously threatening the Germans with an outflanking movement.

Thus another great battle for Warsaw is on, involving perhaps a greater loss of life than any conflict in the war. The issue is still undecided, but the Russians claim that the initiative has passed to them, although further furious German attacks are expected.

The more complex and, strategically, the more important, struggle in the Carpathians is dragging on without any decisive turn. Broadly speaking, it appears that in the western half of the battle region the Russians are making progress, while in the eastern half they appear to have fallen back from the Lupkow and Beskid passes on prepared positions, where they are attempting to stem the rush of large Austro-German forces.

The Russian counter blow on the named assaults of Gen. Hindenburg's men overhadows for the moment the operations of the Russians in East Prussia, and is taken in some quarters to indicate that they have ceased playing the role of merely holding their lines to the west of Warsaw and have determined on an effort to expel the invaders.

The Austrian Government announced to-day that the attacks of the Russians in the Carpathians had broken down and that they had suffered heavy losses. In certain sections of the front the Austrians are on the offensive, and the capture of 4,000 more Russians is reported.

A statement from Petrograd yesterday contained the admission that the Russians had retreated in the region of one of the mountain passes.

AMERICAN FOOD SHIPS ARE SAFE, GERMANS NOW SAY

North Sea, the waters of which are essentially neutral. Germany does not profess to close even the English Channel to neutral commerce, and she does not intend to molest or seize American vessels laden with food-stuffs for the civilian population of enemy countries. It is to be hoped that England will not make necessary a reconsideration of this attitude by seizing American ships like the Wilhelm.

"Germany does, however, announce to the world that it proposes to continue to destroy ships belonging to the enemy, and it adds the notification to neutral powers that, on account of the fact that British ships are employing neutral flags, according to secret instructions now known to have been issued by the British Government, bona fide neutral vessels may actually be endangered."

23,004 HOMELESS IN CITY.

Police "Census" Reveals Misfortune of Many Percent.

There are 23,004 homeless people wandering the streets of New York, according to a canvass just completed by the police for the Mayor's Committee on Unemployment.

The police "census" took in cheap lodging houses, missions, employment agencies and all other places where the homeless would likely be found, such as park benches, deserted steamship piers, bridges, and even warm grates where the homeless seek refuge.

The police worked from 1 o'clock on the night of Jan. 31 until 1 o'clock on the night of Feb. 1, and found 23,004 homeless people.

There were 12,660 males and 10,344 females homeless.
